

Cool as Hecht

University of Miami

Hecht Stanford

Big Men On Campus need big chairs. So we thought we'd oblige.

The Hecht Stanford Dining Hall on UM's campus was built for flexibility. Just off the athletic fields, this 60s era building was run through the paces with a new open-space food concepts, exhibition cooking spaces, fresh prep stations (over river-rock tile), and multi-use dining that includes larger seating for the "Big Appetite" football team.

The dining area is flanked with windows overlooking the intramural fields while another space was given floor to ceiling windows to let in all that Florida sun. In collaboration with Chartwells and the various University departments, Nvironment was able to make separate, specific-use dining spaces that still feel connected to the rest of the space for an altogether welcoming feel.

Highlights

- Shell Design
- Graphics
- Planning
- Signage Design
- Furniture Specifications
- Food Service Engineering
- Fixture Design
- Lighting Design

