DePaul Market

A market in a Chicago hi-rise can pose its own set of challenges. Watch out for nosebleeds.

Updating a tired model of food delivery in DePaul University breathed a new sense of purpose to this 11th floor remodel. Installation of the new free-standing expo center and grab-n-go stations revolutionized the dining experience while making the most of existing structures.

To keep the space loose, a second coffee station and more easy-reach options helped push this new experience to every edge of the remodel. Variations in flooring treatment across the 10,000 square feet broke up the space for easier navigation when packed with hungry students.
